Hi Arne

I just re-read the pages in your book that deals with "Jonstrup Radio" and got carried away, reading many other chapters of your book. Why in the world do you want my input ? Your book includes information and tid-bits that must have taken a lot of effort to compile. What an excellent job you did.

I remember when I first met you in Karup Bunker where you had invited me on one of my trips home. I quickly developed a case of bad conscience, because it was obvious that you took for granted that I was interested in the technical developments of signaltenesten, which I must confess I was not very interested in - and probably never was. To me that period just represented a part of my youth that was very special, and not because of what I learned (or was supposed to have learned). I liked the idea of being a good wireless operator and took pride in sending and receiving at great speeds, but was not very good at the technical stuff, and liked to do my own thing too much. So my days in the service were probably numbered anyway. By now you should have received the info I sent you.- Notice how they gave me good grades for aptitude and interest - little did they know !

I will send you the next installment as promised, but I really have very little to add to your excellent book.

It is also amazing - when I look at the photographs and eyewitness reports in your book I don't recognize more than a couple of guys. You for instance describe a J M Larsen who apparently worked at Jonstrup while I was there, and yet I don't remember him.

I also look at the picture of a bunch of Maths in front of a Spitfire. I know I was there and yet I don't see myself. Maybe it was all a dream.-

It is fun though exchanging memories with you and for that I am happy.

Ulf
